‘Shravana Sandhya’ is the Annual music & dance festival of Kalanandanam. The event is held every August / September, during the month of ‘Shravan’ which is a very auspicious month in the Indian calendar. This month marks the onset of a beautiful season with nature in rich bounty, blooming flowers, lush green trees filling the air with pure sense of joy & happiness across. People respond to this by celebrating; so it marks the beginning of various festivals in India. Of course the best way to welcome this season of joy is through music, dance and arts. This is a very special event for the organization in many ways. It has received laudable appreciation from eminent artists and art patrons. Based on the positive response received and popularity, this year (2014) the event would be held for 2 days with a spectrum of music and dance performances.

AF Cinema – Jappeloup, August 6 at 6:30 pm

Director: Christian Duguay

2013, France, 130 minutes

At the start of the 1980s, Pierre Durand abandoned a promising legal career and threw himself into his true passion, showjumping. With his father's backing, he gambled everything on a young horse that no one else had any faith in: Jappeloup. Too small, too stubborn, too impetuous, he had many faults, but nonetheless had a remarkable jumping ability. From competition to competition, the pair improved and began to make their mark on the showjumping world. But the Los Angeles Olympic Games were a disaster for them, and Pierre had to face up to his shortcomings. With the help of his wife Nadia and groom Raphaëlle, Pierre regained Jappeloup's confidence and built a relationship that took them to victory in the Seoul Olympics in 1988.

Let’s Have Sex by Tanariri Theatre, August 23 & 24 at 3:30 pm and at 7:30 pm (4 shows in total)

Tanariri Theatres' second production is "Let's Have Sex!" a humorous play by the celebrated Russian playwright Valentin Krasnogorov. You'd think that the play is all about sex. Well, yes, it is about sex from the start until the very end....and if you come to think of it, so is life. So why is sex so important to the four characters in the play? And do they necessarily mean the same thing by sex? If not, what happens when their ideas reach a conflict? Will it lead to a quarrel or a fight? Or sex itself?

Writer: Valentin Krasnogorov

Director: Vijay S

Cast: Anubhuti Sood, Garima Tiwari, Pranav Patadiya, Sneha Kumari, Vishal Shah

Crew: Kunal Mehta, Shakti Singh Rana, Neeraja M R, Hiren Kangad

Antigone – An adaptation by Abhishek Sundaravadanan, August 29 & 30 at 6:30 pm

It is that time of the year again. Bangalore little theatre's Summer Project on Theatre (SPOT) culminates in the production of an adaptation of the classic play by Sophocles, drawing on the work of several dramatists, including the adaptation in French by Jean Anouilh. The production is a product of the continuing cultural partnership between Alliance Francaise and BLT. After successfully staging short pieces of Moliere's works last year, this time we are celebrating one of the most popular French dramatists since World War II and the winner of a Tony award, Jean Anouilh. He was sometimes called a mere entertainer. Choreography and music are often integrated into his plots; yet a seriousness and a pessimistic view of life lie beneath his farce and caricature. His protagonists usually reject compromise and thus life. Known to assert their independence from the fated past, themes during his period are more closely related to the existential concerns. Jean Anouilh's adaptation of Sophocles tragedy "Antigone" stages the inescapably wrenching central confrontation between Antigone and Creon. This is perhaps the greatest play ever written about the tension between the duties we owe the state and those we owe to our personal values.

WORKSHOP: "You and your favorite colour", August 30 at 11:00 am

Do you know how colours can change your life ?
Take this journey to discover it and learn how to create your own book with your favorite shades."

Illustration Workshop with Sophie Benini Pietromarchi, a franco-italian artist, author and illustrator of children's books, at Hippocampus – Once a colour palette is ready for each child, and having explained how to create colours, how do they change mood, how do they become as cold as winter, or hot as the burning summer, dark as night, bright as daylight, Sophie will ask each child what is his favourite colour. Therefor will spread a storyboard to make a little book on their own colour, and travel on all his shape, through little questions as: what if it was a magician? What animal would it be? What if a fruit? a feeling? a plant? a machine? a sound? a dress? So Children will be able to explore all nuances of their favorite colour, and who might be very inspired may transform it in a character... who knows?

Age: 7-12 years

Limited places!
